consumers with a clear distinction of the most prominent goods and services in the increasingly widening product range of the globalized market economy. The award represents the high quality basing on good traditions in a more modern even international way.

Dr. János Latorcai, vice president of the Parliament, main patron of the event emphasized in his opening speech: "The qualitative and quantitative expansion, like in a developing business, has begun to stretch the earlier framework. For the survival and growth of Hungarians living beyond our borders, it is crucial that products and services of appropriate standard should find market in the mother country as well. At the same time we also need to see that Hungarians across the border are looking for and are happy to buy products originating in Hungary, thus creating a kind of natural and easily accessible export market, which can serve as a springboard for conquering the markets of Visegrád 4s and thus Central Europe.

Árpád János Potápi, State Secretary for Nation Policy at the Prime Minister's Office outlined in his opening speech: "The key to the prosperity of Hungarians living in the motherland or abroad continues to be the creation of quality value. In the recent years the Hungarian Government has launched several initiatives to support the Hungarian communities in the preservation of Hungarian values and in creating new values. Through a number of programs we are helping Hungarian entrepreneurs acting in homeland in order to realize their development ideas and to create a quality future for their families and communities as well. Value and Quality – The Value and Quality Certification Mark launched this year – by continuing the joint work started in previous years – has the following message to everyone: We, Hungarians, believe in the success of value and quality. Our firm intention is to build up the question of value and quality with great emphasis into the 21st-century history of the Hungarian nation belonging together from cross-border too.

Hunor Kelemen, president of the Democratic Alliance of Hungarians in Romania said in his opening speech: ""We highly appreciate the Value and Quality Award because it is an opportunity to determine the rate of achievement, as well as to present and celebrate the everyday work. In addition to the prosperity of our community, we are doing our best to improve the country, which often looks at us as a foreign child, from which we can only hope to recognize the diversity of national minorities. We have learned as a hundred years of reality that the consequence of minority existence is to look for new ways. We organize events to promote Romanian-Hungarian dialogue, products of our small and medium-sized businesses and our farms are placed on the table and to the households of Romanian and Hungarian people, and we could list the further good examples."
